The Struggle for Transformation

When we view the historical context of the bible we find a very turbulent and often violent world backdrop. There were many hardships, struggles and injustices that often times were intensified by nations and kingdoms rivaling each other. Assyrians, Egyptians, Babylonians, Persians, Greeks and Romans were all attempting to find their fame and fortune in the same 'small' world. There were bound to be conflicts. There were bound to be heartaches.

Such an oppressive and conquering spirit has always been a part of our human history; as then, so today. There is a part of our survival, minimalist attitudes that still try to discover the biggest and best so that we have control and power over others. Is there enough on this earth to satisfy all of our needs? Is there enough on this earth to satisfy all of our wants and desires? We know the answer to these questions and yet our unrealistic desires too often overpower our needs.

Loving and trusting God, ourselves and our neighbors are not just mere words but must be part of every aspect of our lives. It is only when we are deeply in relationship with all aspects of our world that we can truly fulfill this great commandment. God's presence is all encompassing. To fully love God we need to be in an all-encompassing relationship with all of God's creation.

It is for this reason that we are concentrating on our mandate to strive toward loving all God's people all the time here at Resurrection Parish. We can not pick and choose who or what to love in God's creation. Our complicated, layered world demands a complicated, layered love. Jesus is our model. He reached out to any person of faith and hope as he brought peace and courage to them.

I pray we can live more fully into this mysterious struggle to allow God's unconditional love to lead us on this journey of transformation.

Blessings,
Fr. Tom
